Dear Fellows and colleagues,

2020, a year full of challenges and difficulties for everyone around the globe, is finally coming to an end. I am also reaching the end of my journey as President of the Academy. A surge of mixed emotions encompasses me as I write my last message for our newsletter. I hope you will allow me to indulge myself one last time to share some of my thoughts and feelings at both the professional and personal levels. There have been many ups and downs during the past four years, with some anguish, frustration, and disappointment, but also much joy and satisfaction. Despite the challenges, especially in recent months, there is something authentic about the Academy that I find most captivating and has kept me moving forward. The Academy is unlike other institutions I have worked for or with in many ways. Perhaps because it is still relatively young with abundant aspirations and energy, yet it has a spirit that is strongly anchored in a ground of missions and beliefs. I am proud to have been a part of its history. I hope I have not disappointed Professor Sir David Todd, our founding President, to whom we bade farewell in 2017 and are forever indebted.

As I step down from my post as the seventh President, I reflect personally on what I have learned during my term, so that I may move forward positively. At the same time, it is equally important for me to appreciate what the Academy has managed to accomplish and thank all the people who have supported us in our endeavours, as well as individuals who have put in great efforts to make even the impossible possible, such as organising training for the Universal Testing Programme for COVID-19 in an extremely short period of time. Doctors are among the most trusted professionals in society. As a further measure to curb the spread of COVID-19, in accordance with the Prevention and Control of Disease (Compulsory Testing for Certain Persons) Regulation (Cap. 599J), the Government empowered all medical practitioners to require all patients clinically suspected to have contracted COVID-19 to undergo a compulsory test between 28 November and 11 December 2020. I hope that the pandemic will subside and end soon, so that our daily lives can return to normal and our training for specialists can continue without disruptions.

During the past four years, there have been many highlights, which have been mentioned in detail in the Annual Reports. A recent achievement that I believe has been a resounding success is the launch of an e-portfolio system, which has been developed to streamline the workflow for accepting fellowship nominations, as well as to assist Colleges in the collection and maintenance of training and assessment data for specialist trainees and Fellows in a more structured way.

One of my personal goals as President of the Academy was to foster further exchange of clinical knowledge and experience locally and internationally. I am pleased that I was able to make some solid progress towards this goal during my tenure. The Academy's affiliation with the International Association of Medical Regulatory Authorities has been changed from that of a Partner to a Member, in recognition of our unique statutory role in organising, monitoring, assessing and accrediting medical and dental specialist training. In order to better align our evolving training needs, the Academy has also made explorations into substantial equivalency between international accreditation systems that would ultimately form the basis for credit reciprocity for continuous professional development among and between countries, allowing us greater flexibility and enable continuing medical education and training without disruption. Regionally, I am pleased to see the considerable progress made by the SZ-HK Medical Specialist Training Centre established by the Academy and the Shenzhen Medical Doctor Association in July 2019, and look forward to seeing the Centre achieve its goal to raise the standard of specialist training and healthcare services in the Greater Bay Area and beyond. The Academy will be working towards a more robust initiative for setting up a network of academies of medicine in Asia, while strengthening collaborations with the Macao Academy of Medicine and the Korean Academy of Medical Sciences, and maintaining the tripartite relationship with the academies in Malaysia and Singapore.

The wellbeing of Fellows is as important as academic attainment and professional development. I have been working towards another of my goals to contribute to a resilient and sustainable health system development in all areas. For example, the Academy collaborates with the School of Public Health of The University of Hong Kong on a project that evaluates local specialist manpower needs, hoping to identify manpower gaps in different subspecialty areas. The Academy is obliged to look after the mental health of our Fellows and hopes to launch a series of wellbeing enhancement programmes, as the pandemic situation improves, promoting a happier and healthier workforce. This is especially important in light of a recent wellbeing study conducted by the Young Fellows Chapter showing some worrisome emotional and wellbeing issues among our trainees and younger Fellows. A positive and risk-free environment is a most crucial element for Fellows to pursue their life-long and purposeful career. The Academy has made significant progress towards promoting integrity, ethical conduct and professionalism through the work of the Professionalism and Ethics Committee set up in 2019 with best practice guidelines being developed.

I have enjoyed working with young and energetic clinicians, assisting them through all phases of their professional development. With strong support from the Council, the Academy formed the Young Fellows Chapter in 2017 with representatives from 15 Colleges who have been conferred Academy Fellowship within the past 10 years. The aim is to nurture future healthcare leaders by involving them in various activities and affairs of the Academy, allowing them to better understand our objectives and work. The Academy would continue to advance innovative learning pedagogies for specialist training, advocate health science researches and explore the feasibility of establishing a postgraduate medical education office that steers further development and review to ensure our training curricula and activities of different specialties are fit for purpose and on par with international standards.

None of these admirable achievements would have been possible without the support of our diligent Officers and Council members, as well as dedicated staff. It has been a great honour for me to serve you first as Vice-President in 2011 and then as President since 2016. Taking over the reins from me as President is Professor Gilberto Leung. With his strong undergraduate and postgraduate education background and a robust mind, I have firm confidence that he will steer the Academy over waves of challenges in a time of change and uncertainty, propelling the organisation towards more diversified and innovative developments. I am sure that Professor Leung, as the youngest President to date, will also inject new vitality into the role and engage the younger generation of Fellows. Undoubtedly, with the support of a strong Council and secretariat of dedicated staff members, he will continue to embrace our statutory mission of maintaining the standards of our specialists, and have the interest of the society in mind by providing continuing medical education and continuous professional development.

With a strong foundation built from the past, let us face the future with hope and confidence. I look forward to seeing the spirit of the Academy continue to grow, bearing fruits of success that will benefit the Fellows, our profession, as well as the community as a whole.

Thank you once again for all your support!

*Prof CS Lau
President*

News and Announcements

Training and support for the Universal Community Testing Programme

In support of the Government's Universal Community Testing Programme taken place earlier in September 2020, apart from calling for help from Fellows to perform duties at swabbing stations, the Academy and the Hong Kong Jockey Club Disaster Preparedness and Response Institute have played an active role and coordinated training sessions for healthcare practitioners between 26 and 30 August at different locations. The training covered the infection control requirements including proper use of personal protective equipment and the skills/procedures in taking swabs. With support from over 150 trainers from various medical and healthcare organisations/institutions, around 1,800 healthcare practitioners were trained within the 5-day period.

Academy President Prof CS Lau, together with Prof Sophia Chan, Secretary for Food and Health, and Mr Patrick Nip, Secretary for the Civil Service, visited the training booths to show their support to the healthcare professionals. Prof Lau also volunteered to help and was assigned to be the group leader in one of the Centres.

In addition, Prof Lau helped promote the programme by taking a video, encouraging the public to participate in the programme. You may view the video on the Academy Facebook page: <https://www.facebook.com/hkam.org.hk>

Professional Indemnity Insurance

Noting that the escalating premiums of professional liability insurance or unexpected change to the coverage may have become a burden or concern to some Fellows, the Academy has been looking for ways to ease the situation. In 2016, the Academy set up a Working Group on Professional Indemnity Insurance to help the Council look into the matter. It is believed that introduction of alternative insurance products would lead to increased competition in the market and our Fellows would thus benefit by having more choices of medical professional indemnity insurance.

The Academy Council has recently appointed Aon as an exclusive insurance broker to refer its medical professional indemnity insurance product to our Fellows. Aon in return would make a contribution to support the Academy's risk management and related activities, such as organisation of medico-legal seminars and educational initiatives for patient safety. Despite this engagement with Aon, it does not imply any endorsement by the Academy on Aon's products, and it will be Fellows' sole discretion to consider and choose the most appropriate product or service on their own.

Details about the medical professional indemnity insurance can be found in the November issue of e-news published on Academy website. For enquiries, please contact Ms Jessica Liu at 2861 6534 or jessica.liu@aon.com.

Disclaimer:

The Academy only helps Fellows explore alternative insurance solutions as part of membership services. The engagement with Aon does not imply any endorsement by the Academy on Aon's product and it will be Fellows' sole discretion to consider and choose the most appropriate product or service on their own. Fellows should make all necessary assessments, consider seeking all necessary advice, and exercise their own judgement according to their own circumstances. The Academy shall not be responsible for any matters in relation to any product or service referred to or purchased / used by Fellows.

Cross-over education

In our profession, specialty training equips us with the knowledge and skills to handle the challenges within the confines of our own specialty. However, our busy work schedules may have stifled our curiosity to explore beyond the boundaries of these confines. As part of the ongoing efforts of the Young Fellows Chapter (YFC) in promoting collaboration among colleagues and Academy Colleges, we are pleased to announce the planning for a Cross-over Education Video series. This series will cover clinical scenarios that require multidisciplinary involvement and serve as a means for trainees and young Fellows to gain valuable insight into the work of the other specialties involved.

Academy Young Fellow Committee members
Second row: Dr Ka-wang Cheung, Dr Karen Leung, Dr Yolanda Law
Third row: Dr David Lam, Dr Jason Yam, Dr Paul A Koljonen
Fourth row: Dr Eric Yan, Dr Tony Yuen

Chicken Soup for the Doctor's Soul

Much like the original international multi-award winning series Chicken Soup for the Soul, "Chicken Soup for the Doctor's Soul" consists of a collection of inspirational and personal experiences of doctors. Through the sharing of these stories, our readers may discover a different perspective on patient care, find joy and humour in everyday life encounters, rekindle passion in our consuming lifestyle and, most importantly, find solace in the company of like-minded individuals. We cordially invite doctors of all ages and backgrounds to submit their stories. We look forward to hearing from you!

Interested contributors may contact Ms Christine Kuai at 28718727 or email us at yfc@hkam.org.hk. Contributions are welcome year-round.

HKJCDPRI Updates

Sharing professional knowledge through traditional media and social media

According to a survey published by HKJCDPRI in December 2019, 68% of respondents thought that disasters had become more severe than two years ago and the top three disasters the respondents indicated are typhoons, infectious diseases outbreak and fire incidents. As one of the few professionals on disaster preparedness and response in Hong Kong, HKJCDPRI received several invitations from the mass media on sharing knowledge and tips in response to typhoon and pandemic.

Many people will remember that, on 16 September 2018, super typhoon Mangkhut devastated Hong Kong. Radio Television Hong Kong (RTHK) invited HKJCDPRI to share professional knowledge of typhoon preparedness and response in a television programme, 日常8點半. The programme was broadcast on RTHK31 on the second anniversary of Mangkhut. The Director of HKJCDPRI explained the formation of a storm surge and its potential risk to a city. The public were advised to take precautionary measures before severe flooding. In addition, they were shown what items should be included in a survival bag.

To support the special needs of disability groups during COVID-19 pandemic, HKJCDPRI produced three “COVID-19 Practical Guide Videos for Disability Groups”. This series of videos was produced in collaboration with three organisations: namely Ebenezer School & Home for the Visually Impaired, Direction Association For The Handicapped and SLCO Community Resources. The videos, available on YouTube and the HKJCDPRI website, showcase the difficulties during pandemic faced by visually and audibly impaired persons, as well as those with physical disabilities. The videos also encourage the public to pay extra attention to these vulnerable groups in order to protect different individuals in the community.

In order to heighten awareness, we introduced the videos to the press and successfully received full-page coverage from Ming Pao. The report covered how HKJCDPRI supported the disability groups during the pandemic as well as the “COVID-19 Practical Guide Videos for Disability Groups” series of videos.

COVID-19 webinars well-received by NGOs and the public

Following on from the success of the first webinar on Business Continuity Planning (BCP) on 15 July 2020, HKJCDPRI held three more webinars on similar topics to provide advice to organisations on maintaining operations during or after emergency or disaster events. In October, HKJCDPRI held the last webinar on BCP with professional organisations focusing on elderly care. The Hong Kong Association of Gerontology and Christian Family Service Centre – Elderly Care was invited to host a webinar on elderly services for NGO practitioners under COVID-19. The professional knowledge shared was valuable and practical.

People of all ages are facing stress and uncertainty since the outbreak of COVID-19. To support the general public during the pandemic, a series of webinars on mental and psychological health was organised with the Hong Kong College of Psychiatrists in October and November. President of Hong Kong College of Psychiatrists Dr Roger MK Ng was the guest speaker of the first webinar on 27 October, sharing professional knowledge and advice on maintaining mental and psychological health under the pandemic. In two webinars planned for November, Vice Presidents of the College Dr Phyllis Chan and Dr May Lam have been invited to provide advice on maintaining a healthy parent-child relationship and on students' well-being in the challenging school years (2019/2020/2021), respectively.

Promoting disaster preparedness and response knowledge

As the epidemic in Hong Kong stabilised, HKJCDPRI organised and joined outreach activities to promote disaster preparedness and response knowledge to young students, villagers, and the general public in residential estates.

HKJCDPRI reached young students through a new disaster education drama, “Preparing Kids for Disasters”, in collaboration with Drama Gallery, to share preparedness knowledge on different kinds of disasters, including disaster risk reduction, mitigation, and response. After the launch, many primary schools have organised online viewing via zoom. The drama has even been performed in school halls as COVID-19-related travel and gathering restrictions have been eased. Students enjoyed the show and interacted with the characters with great enthusiasm and thunderous laughter.

HKJCDPRI joined “PROJECT WINDBREAK”, a community outreach activity jointly organised by government departments to increase villagers’ awareness on the importance of implementing precautionary measures against typhoons and flooding. A talk on preparedness for typhoons and flooding was delivered at the “Training on Trainers” session, followed by educational outreach activities in three villages at high risk of disaster in Yuen Long: Tai Tseng Wai, Lau Fau Shan, and Lin Fa Tei. Waterproof fortune bags, with useful guidelines and gadgets for use in the event of evacuation, were distributed to villagers.

To educate the public on disaster preparedness and response, an exhibition was held in the densely populated residential area of MOSTown in Ma On Shan on 26 October. Attractive exhibits attracted hundreds of visitors and we successfully shared our knowledge in the community.

HKJC ILCM Updates

Infection Control Measures

To prevent the spread of COVID-19, more stringent guidelines of Infection Control Measures have been imposed at HKJC ILCM. Extra manpower has been deployed to provide cleaning for training sites and medical equipment during the course dates. HKJC ILCM will closely observe the situation and ensure a safe and clean learning environment for all course participants.

HKJC ILCM Strategic Planning Retreat 2020, 1 November 2020

A total of 32 healthcare professionals from different specialties joined the HKJC ILCM Strategic Planning Retreat, held on 1 November 2020. The main objective of the event was to identify the HKJC ILCM’s development directions and consider how to cope with the upcoming challenges. Participants were divided into four groups and actively discussed on the topics of Training Activities, Research, Business Model, and Resources & Quality Standards. Valuable comments and thoughts were shared among the participants.

The suggestions and recommendations received will be considered for the HKJC ILCM’s future plans and directions. A summary report will be prepared for the HKJC ILCM Operation Committee and Advisory Committee for review, and subsequently for comments and endorsement from the Academy Council.

Procedural Sedation Safety Course (PSSC), 26 September 2020

Collaborating with Hong Kong College of Anaesthesiologists (HKCA), the second run of the PSSC was held on 26 September 2020. The course aims at enhancing patient safety during procedural sedation by acquiring a scientific foundation of safe practice. Participants from different specialties were actively engaged in the problem-based learning and simulation exercises. With the positive feedback from both participants and instructors, we will arrange additional runs of PSSC in the future.

Comprehensive Simulation Educator Course (CSEC), 10, 11, 17, & 18 October 2020

After a long break amidst the pandemic, HKJC ILCM has finally overcome many uncertain factors and reactivate CSEC again within an unexpected tight timeline in mid-October 2020. Being vigilant to the pandemic, HKJC ILCM took a lot of infection control measures during the course, making it an unusual experience. The most extraordinary experience was that we could bring in Dr Jenny Rudolph of the Center for Medical Simulation from Boston. She was supposed to visit us onsite, but obstructed by the pandemic, she joined us via live video link to offer her professional advices to our faculty members. HKJC ILCM would like to extend our deepest gratitude to Dr Rudolph for her unfailing support to adjust her tight schedules to fit our short notice. Passing through the demanding 4 days, what was missing was the delightful refreshment breaks which could make the tiring learning journey more pleasant. However, what was the same was the devotion and enthusiasm of all faculty members and the active participation of participants as well as the positive feedback to the learning outcomes.

Event Highlights

Media interview: Position paper on patient blood management, 14 August 2020

Considering the low blood inventory level in the midst of COVID-19 pandemic, as alerted by Hong Kong Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service, the Academy appealed for blood donation and patient blood management last July. On 14 August 2020, a media interview was organised to present a position paper on patient blood management published in the August issue of Hong Kong Medical Journal, with an aim to advocate the good practice and lower the dependence of blood donation and transfusion. The position paper's authors Dr YF Chow, Dr HK Cheng and Dr Cindy Tsui of the Hong Kong Society of Clinical Blood Management Limited were invited to outline patient blood management and its three strategies - optimising patients' RBC mass and better managing anaemia, minimising blood loss and rationalising use of blood and blood components. Academy Editor Prof Martin Wong was also on stage to introduce the Hong Kong Medical Journal.

Career talk co-organised with Hospital Authority, 7 November 2020

The Academy and the Hospital Authority (HA) co-organised a virtual career talk for medical interns interested in the 2021/2022 HA Resident Training Programme, on 7 November 2020. Vice-President (Education & Examinations) Prof Gilberto Leung was one of the speakers of the online event, and he shared information related to postgraduate specialist training and examinations. Consultation sessions were held to provide details about different specialties with enquiries from interns answered by representatives from Academy Colleges and the HA. The successful career talk attracted over 200 attendees.
